

The Parochial Church Council (PCC) of Swanage

Policy for use of photographs and video recordings of children, young people and adults at risk of abuse

- Diocesan responsibilities for safeguarding and the protection of children, young people and adults who may be at risk of abuse (adult at risk) require that an assessment is made about whether publishing a photograph or video recording in any format might pose a risk to a child, young person or vulnerable adult.

Good practice guidelines for photography or video recording at church events

- Use the model consent form (on page 4) as a matter of course for all groups and events at the same time as you collect contact details, permission slips or registration forms.
- If it is impractical to ask all people at an event to sign a consent form (e.g. at most church services which are open to the public), put the Notice about Photographs or Video Recording (see below) in prominent places or in the event programme and on the premises, and make sure official photographers and video recorders are aware of these guidelines. You may also want to read the text of the Notice out in any notices.
- Do not photograph or video record any child, young person or adult at risk who has asked not to be photographed or who is under court order (where it is known).
- All children, young people or adults at risk must be appropriately dressed when photographed or video recorded.
- All people taking photographs or video recording footage for official use at the event should register with the event organiser.
- All concerns regarding inappropriate behaviour or intrusive photography or video recording should be reported to the event organiser.
- At large events, set up photo or video recording opportunities at the end. This allows the performance to go ahead with limited interruption, and allows any child, young person or adult at risk to take part in the event but not to be photographed or video recorded.
- At services relating to 'life events' such as weddings, christenings, etc., if there is no commercial photographer contracted, ask those being married/baptised/etc or their families to provide a designated photographer. The official or designated photographer can be briefed on photography guidelines before the event. This also cuts down on intrusive use of cameras or phones during an act of worship.

Guidance on the use of photographic material in the parish, including the internet

Diocesan churches and organisations creating their own website are encouraged to observe the safeguarding guidelines below and to regularly review the pages of their site so that it remains up to date, effective and safe.

Guidelines:

- Photographs and video recordings are deeply personal and must be used responsibly.

- Obtain consent as above from parents, guardians or carers before using photographs or video recordings of children, young people or adults at risk on a website.
- Children, young people or adults who may be at risk should not be identified by their full name. Under no circumstances should the e-mail, postal addresses or telephone numbers of children, young people or adults be published.
- Ensure that the image files are appropriately named – do not use the names of children, young people or adults who may be at risk in image filenames or Alt tags.
- Only use images of children, young person or adults at risk in suitable dress.
- The use of inappropriate images should be reported through the standard procedures (statutory authorities and Diocesan Safeguarding Adviser) to reduce the risks to children, young people or vulnerable adults.

Taking the Best Photographs – Photography Guidelines

Photographing a news story or event

- Try to find an interesting angle.
- 'Action shots' always look much more interesting on the page than people standing in groups and smiling politely at the camera. Timing is crucial!
- Is there anything your subject(s) could wear, use or hold to help illustrate the story?

Background and lighting

- Always be aware of your background. Are there people wandering about who are going to interfere with the shot? Is there enough light? Are there any unsightly signs or damaged paintwork behind your subject(s)?
- If in doubt, take your picture outside but make sure you are facing away from the sun and be careful of shadows on faces.
- Inside buildings, avoid taking photographs of people or other subjects against brightly lit windows or bright lights.

Dark buildings and camera phones

- Churches are often quite dark inside. This means that many shots taken inside them are blurred, especially if they are taken with camera phones. To get maximum stability, cradle the phone in both hands and rest your elbows against a pew or chair.
- You will obtain best results by mounting your camera on a tripod. Take several shots: movement can create blurring if your shutter speed is much slower than 1/60 sec.

Group photographs

- You are in charge of the shot! Ensure you are close enough to the group to see everybody's faces. Check that everyone is clearly visible, and tell them to move if need be.
- If it is a large group, arrange everyone on steps, or ask the front row to sit or kneel, rather than lining everyone up in a row. If required, ask them to turn to the side as this allows them to stand closer together.
- If you are focusing on an individual, it is better to take a close-up photograph rather than a full-length one from far away.

Safety shots

- Make sure you take two or three photographs each time, especially in dark places or of groups of people. The more you take, the more likely it is that you will end up with a decent image. You may also find that people relax more after the first photograph has been taken and will therefore be smiling more naturally in your second or third image. Check that everyone is visible and has their eyes open!

NB: Safeguarding

- If you are taking photographs of specific children who can be easily identified in a particular location, you need written permission from their parents, carers or schools. Schools usually have standard permissions: if in doubt, ask members of staff. Group shots – or shots that do not show the whole face – are safer. You can download a permission slip from our Toolkit folder.

Picture quality

- Images for publication and use on social media accounts must be of a sufficiently high resolution. Please note that a poor quality or low-resolution image is likely to be deemed unsuitable for publication.
- If you are sending them to us, it is best to e-mail images as separate jpeg file attachments, at least 250KB in size, or as printed photos for scanning. Please do not submit images embedded in Word documents!
